

Example_Pseudo classes

Example_1

Add one div tag of 100px width and 100px height with color purple. Write css code to change its color to red while you hovering over it.

Example_2

Design a webpage that includes:

1. A button that changes its color when hovered over and when clicked.
2. A text input field that changes its background color when it gains focus.
3. An unordered list where:
 - The second list item is styled differently, with red text color and bold font.
 - One of the list items has a class named “special”, and all other list items (except the one with this class) have an aqua background and italic font style.
